

KILLED BY BOLT AT DOOR OF HIS HOME

The Springer Stockman says: Last Sunday at noon, at his home on the Sweetwater, fifteen miles southwest of Springer, Teodoro Casias was instantly killed by lightning. He had only been home a little while from Cimarron, and was standing outside the door of his residence looking up at the clouds, which were threatening rain, when a bolt of lightning descended, killing him instantly. The unfortunate man was 26 years of age, leaving a young wife, father and mother and several brothers and sisters to mourn his untimely death. He was a son of Victorio Casias.

Tres Piedras, N. M., July 25.—Presentio Velasquez, of La Madera, a well known native of this section, was instantly killed by lightning Sunday while fishing with a party of friends on the Vallecitos.
